

Some people have a natural talent for music. They're able to hear a song and recreate it in real-time on an instrument, or compose a melody in their head and then play it back without any notes. Usually, these people have been playing since infancy, but the truth is that anyone can teach themselves how to develop this talent by using simple tools such as piano apps, guitar apps, and drumming apps.

World War Z is a zombie survival video game based on the film of the same title. The game takes place in a post-apocalyptic world where the human race has survived by living underground for 50 years after an enormous zombie epidemic killed almost all of humanity except for those who escaped to the moon, who are now fighting over limited resources on this new terrain. While these people are working to establish a society, they must deal with an ancient evil that threatens them from above. Caught in the middle of all of this are "Players", ordinary civilians who have been chosen as "Super humans" due to their natural talent for playing music or some other talent that makes them useful to end-game survivors. Drums are one of the easiest instruments to play if you want to learn music on your own. Most people have played drums at some point in their life, even if it was just banging on pots and pans during a tantrum. You can get started by downloading the app "Drum Kit for iPad" from the App Store. This is one of many drumming apps available for Apple products, but it is the most professional-sounding because of its wide range of instrument pads and realistic samples. You can use this app to play around or learn how to drum properly, but if you want to end up playing music that matters rather than just keeping time, you'll probably need something more complex eventually. You can download guitar apps for the iPad, piano apps for the iPad, and drums apps for the iPad, but if you want to play music that matters rather than just keep time for yourself, you'll probably need something more complex eventually. You have an iPod or iPhone with you at all times, don't you? You spend your whole day listening to music. Maybe your whole life has revolved around collecting songs and listening to them over and over again. If this is true, then chances are that you already own sheet music or an instructional book about playing an instrument or singing. But wait! The truth is that anyone can learn to play any type of song using these materials (musicians call these "licks"). The first thing you need to do is prepare your instrument. You can't play a modern song without a guitar, but this won't be a problem if you have an iPod or iPhone with you at all times, don't you? You spend your whole day listening to music. Maybe your whole life has revolved around collecting songs and listening to them over and over again.
